How do you build a plan of financial protection?

Start with whole life insurance – designed to provide a strong foundation of life insurance coverage. Whether by itself or combined with term life, it can be used in the unfortunate circumstance of the death of a breadwinner or cherished loved one.

What other benefits can whole life insurance provide?

- Coverage isn't tied to your employment – you can take the benefit with you if and when you leave your current employer, and keep it all the way into retirement if you choose.
- The cost you pay for this coverage won't change, which helps with your personal financial planning.
- The policy builds cash value from which you can borrow when needed.

But what if you already own term life insurance?

While you may own term life insurance, the fact is you may not have enough coverage to adequately protect your family or meet their future financial needs. According to a recent study, 53% of Americans expressed a heightened need for life insurance because of COVID-19*. Combining term and whole life insurance can offer the substantial financial protection you and your family deserve.

Stability for the long run

Whole life insurance complements term life insurance in some important ways, ensuring stability for the long run.

 The cost increases as you get older		 The cost stays the same for the life of the policy
 Does not accumulate cash value		 The investment portion of the policy has the potential to accumulate cash value on a tax-deferred basis You may be able to borrow – generally tax-free – against your cash value and pay back the loan with interest.
